

User Stories

- As someone with visual impairment I want to be made aware of obstacles so that I can have greater movement independence - 10
- As someone with visual impairment I want to be made aware of steps so that I can prepare to traverse them - 8
- As someone with visual impairment I want to be made aware of changes in the terrain so that I can prepare to traverse uneven ground - 8
- As someone with visual impairment I want to be made aware of crossings so that I have somewhere safe to cross a road - 8
- As someone with visual impairment I want to get rich descriptive information about the scene before me so that I can increase my awareness - 5
- As someone with visual impairment I want to know path direction so that I can plan my path ahead - 10
- As someone with visual impairment I want to be made aware of benches so that I can sit and relax while on a walk - 3
- As someone with visual impairment I want a user-interface that meets the DDA standards so that I can have an inclusive experience that meets my needs - 2
- As someone with visual impairment I want to be offered as many device options as is possible so that I have the best possible access to the service, regardless of available capital - 10
- As someone setting up the visual aide I want an easy and intuitive set-up process so that the technical knowledge barrier is reduced, which increases inclusivity and availability - 5
- As someone with visual impairment, using the mobile device application, I want redundancies built into the application so that a possible spike in response time or a lack of signal do not become dangerous - 5
- As the user I want to be able to quiet the application, if it is not needed or interferes with any other task so that I can concentrate on other requirements - 1
- As someone with visual impairment I want the application to start up automatically, in headless mode, so that I can have a dedicated device that only requires powering on and no awkward start-up process - 1
- As someone setting up the visual aide I want clear instructions about the hardware setup process so that I can complete the process easily -3
- As someone with visual impairment I want to be able to easily remove the headless mode so that I can return my device to other required tasks - 1
- As someone removing the application I want an uncomplicated way to remove it so that no technical expertise is required - 2